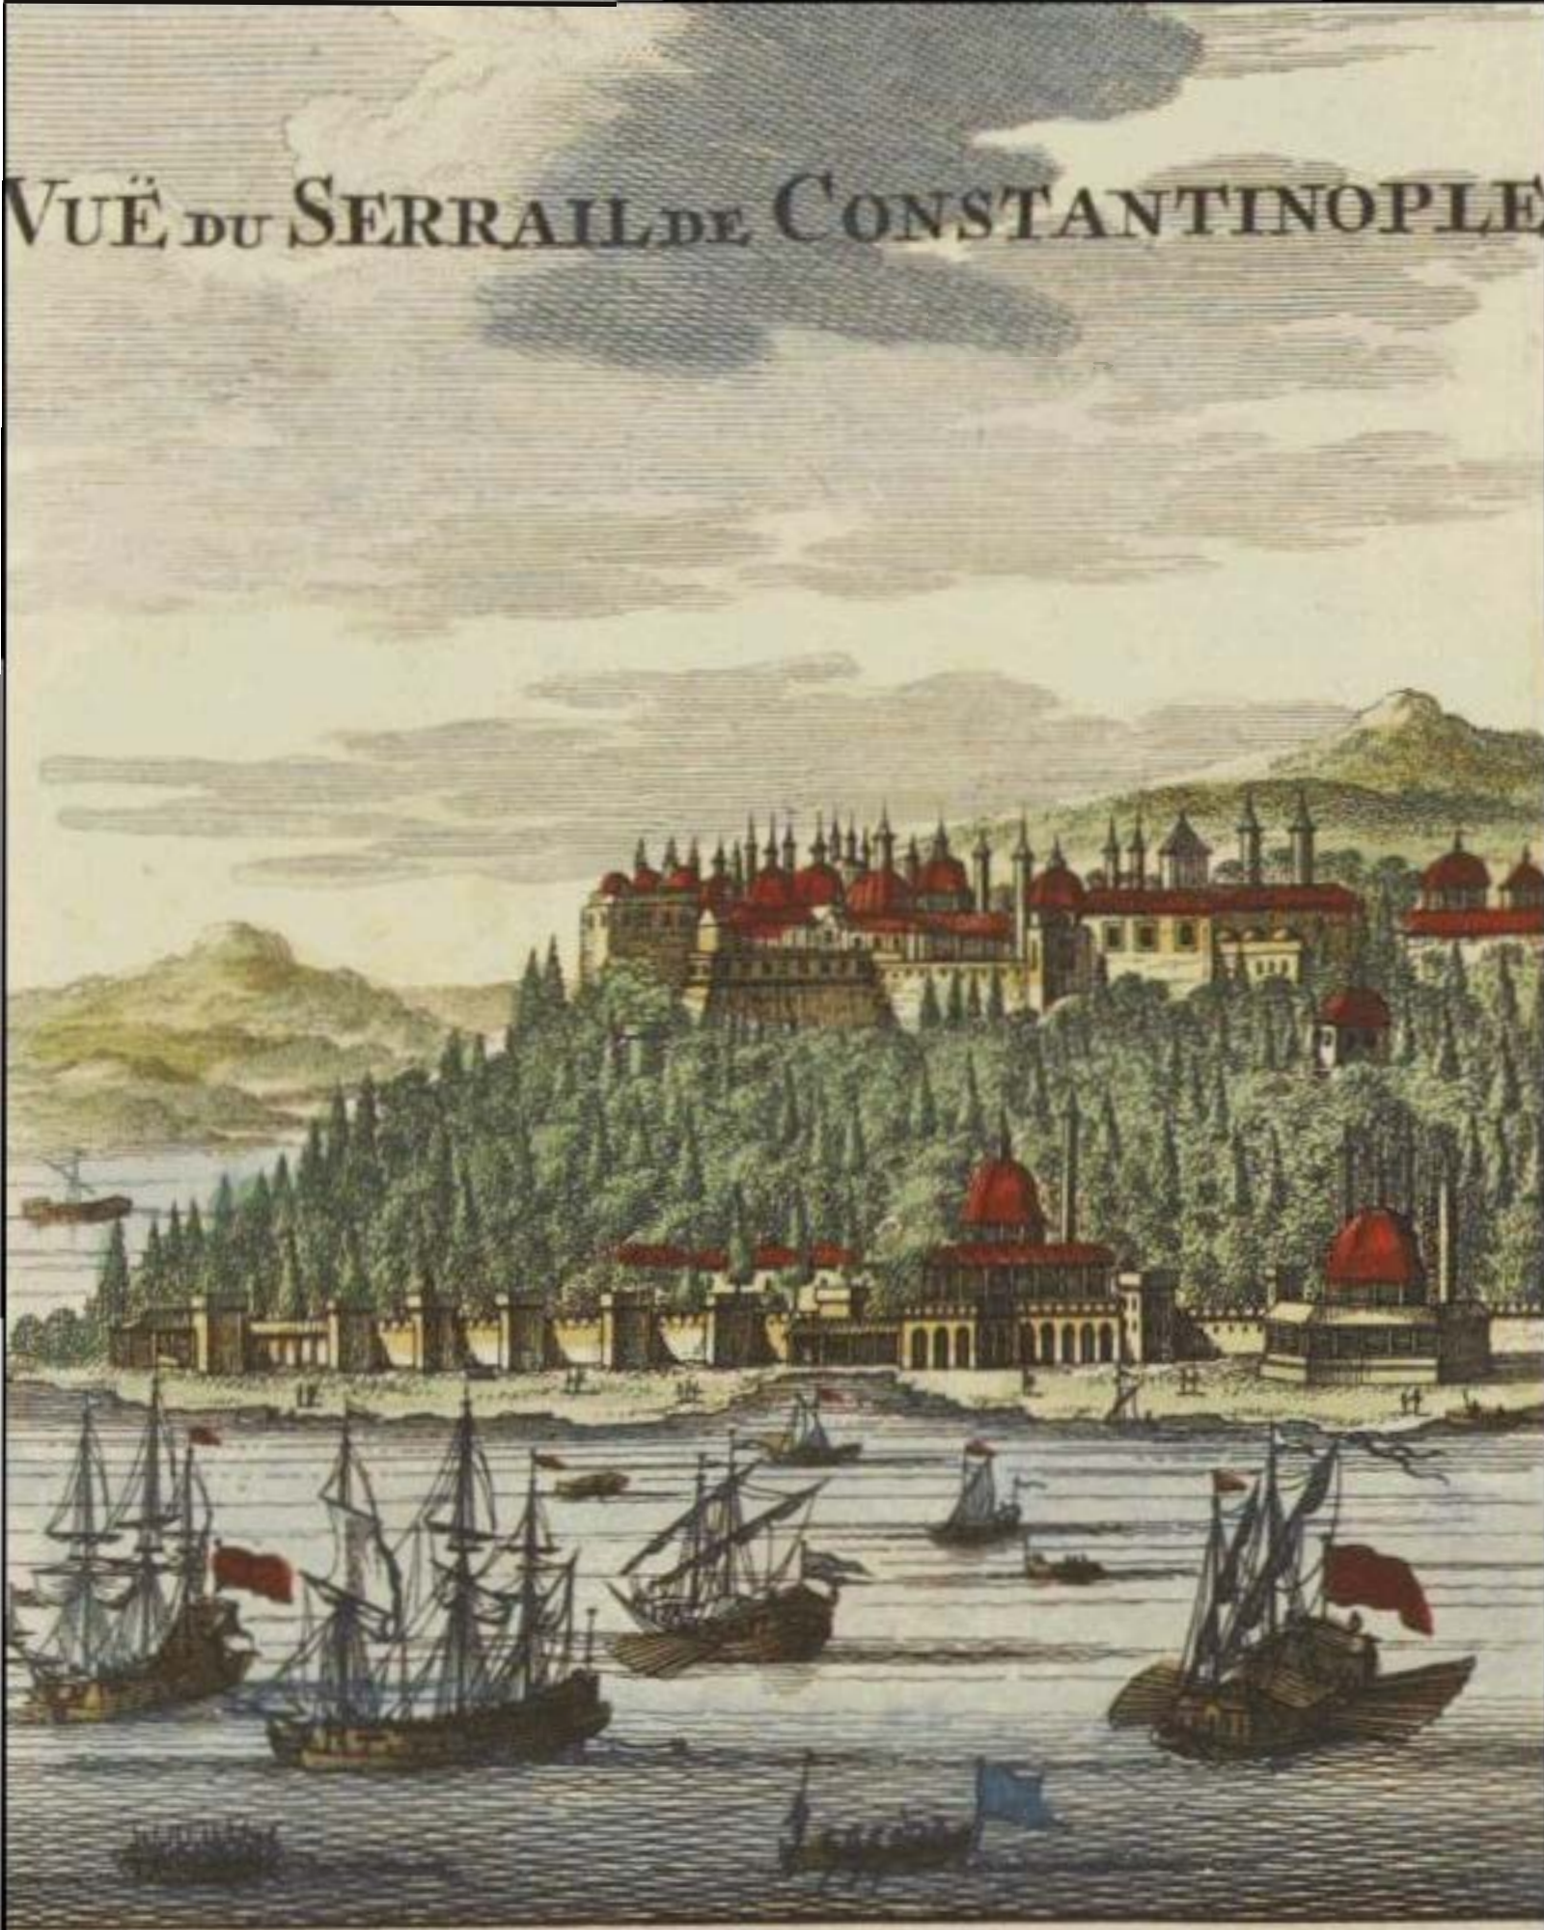
VUË DU SERRAIL DE CONSTANTINOPLE



Constantinople est une des plus belles villes du monde le Serrail que l'on voit ci dessus est le Palais, où le Sultan fait son Sejour et où sont renfermées les Sultanes et les Dames qui servent au plaisir du grand Seigneur. Le Palais n'a rien moins que de Magnifique en dehors, toute la beauté étant renfermée en dedans. comme sont la plus-part des Palais de tous les Princes d'Orient.

THE TURKISH FLEET AT ANCHOR IN THE BOSPHORUS—SKETCHED FROM A HILL NEAR BUYUKDERE—THE BLACK SEA IN THE DISTANCE.

Meantime, Mehemet Ali had been induced to withdraw his forces from Asia Minor (June, 1833), and a temporary calm was secured. But still, notwithstanding the indefatigable exertions of the Ministers of the Western Powers, the Egyptian question was not settled. Armaments were kept up both in Turkey and Egypt; and the Porte, in particular, commenced the construction of a formidable fleet, destined, it was apprehended, to coerce his rebellious vassal. At length Mehemet Ali (who had gradually increased his pretensions upon every occasion of treaty) threw off his allegiance altogether, by a note addressed (June, 1838) to the Consuls of England, France, Austria, and Prussia at Cairo, in which he declared that he would, henceforth, not pay any tribute whatever to the Porte, and that he considered himself the lord paramount Sovereign of Egypt, Arabia, and Syria. It was not, however, till the following year that the renewal of hostilities, so long threatened, actually took place; the initiative being taken by the Ottoman Government, but with signal ill-success. In June, the troops of Ibrahim Pacha, which had hitherto maintained a defensive attitude, attacked and completely routed the Ottoman forces at Nezib. The news of this defeat arrived at Constantinople on the 4th of July; but Sultan Mahmoud was spared the pain of hearing it: a week previously he had ceased to breathe, having died suddenly in the night of an internal disease, the symptoms of which he had concealed from his physicians, lest they would make it a ground for restricting his personal attention to affairs of state.

The disaster of Nezib was, a few days afterwards, followed up by an extraordinary act of treason on the part of the Capitan Pacha, who in command of the fleet, which the late Sultan had taken at each port point to collect, instead of using it against the enemy as he had been instructed, actually sailed into the port of Alexandria (14th July), and placed the ships at the disposal of Mehemet Ali. The latter sent immediately to Constantinople to declare that he would not give up the fleet, which had so fallen into his hands, until he was acknowledged as hereditary sovereign of the states which he ruled. This event, however, belongs more properly to the reign of the present Sultan, Abdul-Medjid; before proceeding to treat of which, we propose to make some observations upon the character and domestic policy of the deceased monarch.

CASTLE OF THE SEVEN TOWERS, CONSTANTINOPLE.

MAHMOUD—HIS REFORMS.

Mahmoud II. was a reformer, worthy to be classed at least upon an equal footing with Peter the Great, who, by a little more than a century his predecessor, endeavoured to assimilate his rude subjects with the civilised nations of Western Europe, and to consolidate the Imperial power in the place of rival hereditary factions. But the Turkish Monarch had a more difficult task to perform than the Russian—he had to contend against religious fanaticism, which rendered it repugnant to his subjects in any way to imitate or associate with the people of the rest of Europe. It has been suggested by some writers, that if he had proceeded more gradually, and in a conciliatory manner, in his reforms, he might perhaps have been more successful with them. But this is much to be doubted. There is a certain point of fanaticism and moral degradation, where the urgent and most persuasive arguments are utterly unavailing, where coercion is absolutely necessary as a preliminary to persuasion. Mahmoud has been charged with unnecessary cruelty. Undoubtedly, his reign was one of the most bloodstained in history; but we do not think he took pleasure in acts of cruelty, or adopted a single measure of severity which he did not consider to be essential to the attainment of that order of things which would ensure peace for the future. And certainly it is a fact, which we remark with satisfaction, that when he died he left an inheritance to his son which, during fifteen years since elapsed, it has been possible to govern almost without recourse to the sword. Not only have there been no revolutions during this comparatively happy period, but capital punishments have been virtually abolished. It now remains to mention some of the principal measures of reform adopted or attempted by the remarkable man of whose reign we have just been treating.

The substitution of a regular army, under proper discipline, or the undisciplined and turbulent Janissaries, has been already spoken of at length. It was upon the creation of the bill of Sunbul, that Sultan Mahmoud determined upon a still further reform of his military forces, in accordance with European habits, and issued a hatti-sherif, enjoining all Mussulmans to a readiness to carry arms to discontinue the use of the loose robes, turbans, &c., constituting the ancient Ottoman costumes, and to adopt Cossack trousers, and the red cap, or fez. This change caused a great deal of discontent; but it was not the only approach

TURKISH SOLDIERS ON THE LAKE OF ORTA.—FROM A SKETCH BY ALBERT SMITH.

CONSTANTINOPLE

By the latest accounts from Constantinople, the Sultan and his Ministers continue to prepare calmly for every emergency. The Sultan has himself examined into the state of the army, the navy, and the commissariat. The Turkish steam-vessels are complete in all their appointments. The maritime resources of the Ottoman Empire are immense. The merchant navy is very extensive, and there [illegible] Black Sea, from Batoum to the Bosphorus. These boat-men resemblance to the sailors of the north of England and of Scotland, natives of a wild coast, and navigating [illegible] Archipelago, and along the coast of Asia Minor and Syria, are some of the finest sailors in the world, and a population [illegible] Italy excepted.

[illegible] Thursday, the residences of the English and French Ambassadors are three miles, and on the top of the ridge a man-of-war steamer lay off each place, with yards manned, waiting to convey the representatives of France and England to her Sublime, where the Turkish troops were encamped. There the ambassadors landed their grand Sardinian carriages and gaily-caparisoned horses waiting to convey them and their suites to the ground where the review was to take place. About two miles in front of the camp a line of tents was pitched. On the right [illegible] Minister of Foreign Affairs received the Ambassadors.

The troops, of which there were 30,000 present, were supposed to be in front of an enemy, and were brought the usual evolutions of a review. All the cavalry carried lances; and though they charged repeatedly, and at times in considerable masses, not a single accident occurred. The artillery is excellent, and inferior [illegible] Turkish [illegible] English and others, [illegible] all expressed their admiration at the good condition of the Turkish troops, and the admirable manner in which they went through their evolutions.

In the second scene we have pictured the magnificent state barge of the Sultan, in which his Majesty enjoys occasional excursions in the neighbourhood of the [illegible] It is of elegant design; and, as an exceptionally fitted canopy, possesses a [illegible] end of regal state and splendour.

THE LATE EXECUTIONS IN HUNGARY.—The Paris National publishes the following details connected with the late military executions in Hungary:—"Kiss and his three companions were shot as early as four o'clock in the morning; the death of the former was horrible—three volleys had to be fired at him, and his sufferings endured for more than ten minutes. At six o'clock in the morning, Count Vecsey, whose [illegible] was wished to perish as severely as possible, in consequence of the damage which his cannon had done to the walls of Temesvar, was reserved for the last, in order that for four hours he might witness the sufferings of his companions in arms. There were nine pieces erected in a line, but there was only one executioner, with two men to assist him. About eight o'clock, Count Charles Leiningen, who was to be the third in order, became impatient at the monotonous delay and said, in a tone of gaiety, 'I think at least they ought to give us some breakfast.' 'General, will you drink?' said a soldier, tendering him his gourd. 'Thank you, my friend,' replied the Count, 'I [illegible] who is give me courage; give me a glass of wine.' He [illegible] wrote with a pencil a few lines to his brother-in-law, protesting against the calumnies which had been circulated against him, of having fired on the prisoners, declaring on the contrary that he had used every effort to protect the fourteen [illegible] recommended [illegible] to his brother-in-law. [illegible] by saying, that if, hereafter, [illegible]

[illegible] occasion every arrangement had been made for his [illegible] brother-in-law could not fly with him. General Leiningen was a man of athletic stature. In battle he was careless of his personal safety, but always anxious to [illegible] and he had [illegible] words beloved by them. He was a German by birth, but had acquired the affection of the Magyar peasantry. His wife is a Hungarian. All these generals perished without one showing even the slightest indication of fear at the awful scene. Baron Jossinak, who was executed at Pesth, evinced a courage almost superhuman. [illegible] of the drums nor the threatening injunctions which were given him, could prevent him crying out, with a stentorian voice, "I die a martyr for liberty; may every drop of my blood fall on the heads of my executioners!"

THE [illegible] AND THE GOOSE.—[illegible] the property of Messrs. Gabriel, of Hamburgh, [illegible] for America. They were escorted to the [illegible] by many of the gentlemen of the town and garrison, and were taken on board by Mr. Fox, in his packet the Fly. Captain Clare is well known as the great Anglo-German agricultural reformer, and author of many useful works on that subject. He recently sold his large estate in North Germany, and is about to devote two or three years to the settlement of selected German emigrants in the south Australian and Port [illegible] under the auspices of the former Governments.

CURE FOR DRUNKENNESS IN SWEDEN.—The Swedish Government has just enacted certain laws against drunkenness, which show the degree to which that degrading vice has attained. For the first offence a fine of 10 rix-dollars is imposed; for the second, 20 rix-dollars; for the third or fourth, the electoral franchise and the privilege of being elected a member of Parliament are forfeited; and the offender is sentenced to expiate his guilt in the pillory on the following Sunday in front of the parish church. For the fifth offence the culprit is [illegible] a term of correction for one year. A person convicted of having [illegible] pays of rix-dollars, and 30 if the victim be [illegible] wife.

SURRENDER OF THE TOWER OF PRASTA, DARDANELLES.

THE SURRENDER OF PRASTA

(From a Correspondent.)

The Tower of Prasta, one of three forming the outworks to the great fortress of Sestos-el-Rumi, stood on the north-east angle of the island of that name. It mounted twenty guns—in two tiers of casemates; and six en barbette, on the roof—covering with its fire the approach from the northward to the main channel, through which ships must pass in going to the southward of the Aliant group. On the 15th ult. it was invested by a detachment of French and Turkish troops with field-guns; and on the morning of the 16th it was bombarded at long range, for nearly three hours, by a squadron of English and French steamers, under Rear-Admiral Pisentige, without receiving any material damage. On the surrender of the large fort bearing known, this fort ceased firing; and at 4.30 p.m. a white flag was hoisted on the tower, the [illegible] and the garrison marched out, fully equipped, and formed up in the plateau in front. Some companies of the garrison [illegible] and the remainder, advancing to meet them, marched in [illegible] to the French and English Commanders, [illegible] The garrison, consisting of [illegible] and three officers, was very shortly afterwards on board a French steamer for conveyance to Gallipoli. The damage done to the tower by the fire of the steamers was almost entirely confined to the roof and gun-room barbette, two of these were disabled, and the framing of the roof considerably shattered by shot and shell; neither the [illegible] of the garrison nor the security of the bomb-proof casemates was in any way affected. Two men were found killed, and three wounded, by the fire of the steamers, in the morning.

The accompanying Sketch, taken on the spot, represents the surrender of the Commandant of the fort to the French and English [illegible]. On the left of the picture are the [illegible] of French infantry, with their colours and two field-pieces; a third field-piece in the gateway. The garrison is drawn up in front of the tower; they wore helmets and long grey cloaks, black cross belts, and carried long bright-barrelled muskets. In the centre, the French Commandant is in the act of receiving the sword of the Russian Colonel.

THE CAPTURED BARRACKS

On the balcony of the [illegible] quite [illegible] of Cossacks, and a Turkish band played for the [illegible] union of their brethren in arms. The English and French soldiers cannot understand why the Turks should claim any superiority, and they have no idea of being a whit lower than any one; consequently, the Turks begin to get knocked about in a way they never dreamed of [illegible]. When the troops [illegible] walking alone in the streets of a Turkish quarter, not a baton, accompanied by a escort, as usual. The escort ordered him aside; but the Englishman thought he had as good a right as anybody to be where he pleased, and would not budge. The escort came up and tried to push him aside, but soon found himself floundering in the dust. He rose in a rather [illegible], and was about to [illegible] himself upon the [illegible], but for the interference of some Turks, wiser than himself, who told him [illegible] no use, nobody could do anything with these "Inglis."

The British lines split the [illegible] in a north-westerly direction.

Iericho.

Il est souuent faict mẽtion de ceste cité au liure de Iosue. Ce chef principalle autresfois construict a la vallée syluestre & au paradis de dieu, & est aujourdhuy assez notoire, & pour estre bien scitue en terre assez merueilleusement fertile deuant la destruction de Sodome & de Gomorre. Car l'herbe excellente du baulme a creu en la seule ville de Iericho, dont elle a esté prins son nom. Car Iericho en Hebrieu, signifie vne odeur. Parce que dict en ceste maniere. Le baulme est preferé a toutes odeurs. Il n'y a que iudee qui en ait. Autresfois la creut seulement en deux iardins, qui estoient tous deux royaux. On dict qu'il se plante de branches, il le fault fiche dedans la vigne, & ne se peut soustenir sans appuy. Il croist hastiuement & produict son fruict en trois ans. La fueille ressemble a celle de la rue, & rousseaste verdoye. On en engraue dedans les verres, les pierres & les coquilles d'oz. Il ne souffre point qu'on blesse auec le fer ce qui a vie, & contre poise le fer meme la main de celuy qui coupe, qu'il ne puisse aller iusqu'al'escorce. Il sort vne sorte de ce qui est coupé qu'on appelle opobalsamum, qui est vne merueilleuse douceur mais la goutte est bien petite. Ce pendant qu'Alexandre le grãd estoit là, on n'empouoit sinon vne liure d'huile de baulme tout au long d'vn iour d'elle. La principale vertu est en la larme, la seconde en la semence, la tierce en l'escorce, la moindre est au bois. Au reste apres que Tite empereur Romain eut destruict Ierusalem en vengeance de l'iniure de Christ, & enuoyé les Iuifz en exil perpetuel, puis l'herbe & plante du baulme fut transportee en Egypte, & en diray quelque chose comme la ville de Caire. De la rose de Iericho, qu'on apporte en ces pays de Leuant, ie sçay bien que vous ne trouuerez pas en Iericho, mais en vne autre Iericho, qui est vne ville de Iudee, qui est assez

LA FVGA E PARTENZA DELL'ARMATA
TVRCHESCA ADI·XIII·DI SETTEMBRE·M·D·LXV·
Il 9 di Settembre fecero in Giornata, onde refero al Bassa, che li Christiani non erano più di Semila, con poca Vettouaglia, & che Don Garzia era tornato a pigliare il resto de le sue, & che i aspettauano Bellissimo, hauendo inteso l'assaltare di Turchi per mare & per terra Volse questo Il Bassa subito ordinò al suo campo che douessero ritirarsi gli alloggiamenti, & fatto ogni sforzo, imbarcò tutta l'Artiglieria, & che fu fatto. Ma dopo pensato che gli sarebbe eterna Infamia il fuggire, senza hauer mostrato la faccia al nemico, & compiuta perdita de tanto denaro del suo Sig.re, si risolse estimamente voler tornare alle mura con vostro, & tentare di hauere la miglior gente che haueua per Combattere, credendo che le Galere i andassero ad aspettare alla Cala di San Polo.
Fu quando il Gran Maestro intese il disegno del Bassa, il che subito fece sapere a tutti quelli Sig.ri del gran Soccorso, essortandogli come Mattino Bassa con Sedici mila de fare comune all'Incontro, Volendo fare l'vltimo suo sforzo.

La Città Vecchia
Dopo la rotta il Bassa disperato assalto non si tenendo securo per gli suoi Vasselli fu parendogli che certo sarebbe fussero Galere, & dubitando della venuta di Don Garzia, con gran rabbia & confusione fece sfrattare un Comune, & a tre hore di notte si parti, lasciando il Gran Maestro con tutta sua gente di quatro Mesi da quali, & stanco, con affanno, & fatiche si liberò da Vttoriosa. Et che si deue quello si dice, se tanto fussero stati combattuti per conquistarne il Paradiso con mai combattendo le nostre pietre? Dove si ben per giorni che si trouorno Soldati nella Città, con quelli loro si terribile Artiglieria, & si ben anchor per certo, che in tutto il tempo delli Assalti de Turchi ne morirno da Vinti mila? Nulla di principio potevano essere da quindeci mila anime, de quali tra Christiani & Soldati ne morirno da noue mila, fra quali furno più de tre mila tra Caualieri & Soldati, si che nell'vltimo al Gran Maestro non gli era voluto altro che quelli pochi huomini da combattere Dicho cosa che chiara, che l'hauendo voluto molto meglio con tanti Caualieri & Soldati, non sofferto a un grande assalto, gouernandosi con indipendentia Gradoro, quanto in ogni altro mai si fia visto essendo con si pochi, rispetto al gran numero de' nemici, che si Vede che armassero a certo volta della maggior forza che mai uscisse da Turchia, con il maggior apparato di guerra che in ogni quel tempo hauesse fatto il Turco. Essendo stato fra Loro a mutuale in ordine con ammo di pigliare non solamente Malta, ma l'Italia, ma meglio la Christianità, portando Stendardi Caualieri conforme la bolla, fra quali ancora Standardo di Malta, & due Mandate grandi, & mandano per Corso nella Terra con le loro armi per tutti Galeotti, & un numero infinito di Palle di Gran, empresse per le mura d'ogni altra maniera.

THE TURKISH FLEET LOOKING FOR PREY

FIGHTING THE GREEKS OFF IMBROS ISLAND

A TURKISH DIVISION LOOKING FOR THE ENEMY

THE TURKISH CRUISER MEDJIDIEH AND A DESTROYER FLOTILLA CHASING THE GREEK FLOTILLA OF TEN BOATS

THE HAMIDIEH STEAMING HOME WITH A WOUND ON HER STARBOARD BOW

While the Peace Congress has been sitting in London the Turkish and Greek fleets have been [illegible] at one another at intervals, though with no very serious results. In the middle of December the Turkish fleet left the Dardanelles and engaged the Greek fleet off Imbros Island at a range of seven miles, the Greeks withdrawing after an hour's firing, during which a Whitehead torpedo holed the Hamidieh and killed one Turk. Last week the Turkish cruiser passed through the lines of Greek destroyers during a fog and bombarded the powder magazine on the island of Syra. Finally, on Saturday, an engagement was reported off Lemnos, in which the Turks were said to be defeated.

ABDUL 'L MEDJID, SULTAN OF TURKEY.—FROM AN ORIGINAL PAINTING IN THE POSSESSION OF THE TURKISH AMBASSADOR.

wet. For instance, he cannot get the Sultan in swimming. It is related that, not long ago, he introduced the novelty of a small peak or rise to his fete. The true Mussulmans were aghast: the Pontiff Sheikh (el Islam) remonstrated—such a fall was against the Koran; and the Sultan had to submit: the peak disappeared. But, next day he invited the head of religion to ride out with him; and they rode westward — straight towards the setting sun. The fall was pointed out every object to the Sheikh: the Sheikh was courteously observant. In order to see, however, he had to put up the outstretched hand at right angles with the forehead, to shelter his eyes from the rays of the sun. The Sultan noticed this, and struck the head of the holy man heavily with his fist. The holy man was reminded that the Koran forbade peaks to Islam; the holy man was corrected, and the peak re-appeared on the Royal Sea. By so successful a reading of the Koran, the Sultan has been enabled to indulge himself in his favourite wine—champagne. It is well known that his father died from drinking brandy, to which, consequently, he has a medicinal as well as orthodox aversion. His theory is that the Koran forbids fermented liquors; but that champagne is not fermented, and is, consequently, not illegal drink; and this reading has been highly applauded by the ladies of the seraglio, with whom Abdul 'l-Medjid passes more time than should be spared from Government. Of a handsome person, but not of a robust constitution, he avoids martial exercises, and takes more delight in archery matches than in reviews. Gifted, however, with great perception, the Sultan has been fortunate in the choice of men to whom to has entrusted the care of the army and navy. He seeks the best men from all countries, and the result is that according to Mr. David Urquhart, who is, perhaps, more competent to speak on these questions than any man living, Turkey has nothing to fear from a campaign with Russia. The artillery has been formed, and is directed by Prussians; the infantry by the French; and the navy has long been under the command of Englishmen—formerly of Captain Walker, now of Captain Slade, both holding that grade in the British service. The Sultan, however, does all he can to collect efficient officers and ministers from the Turks; and he yearly sends over swords of picked young men for European culture; to Paris for the Polytechnic School; to Liverpool for commerce; to London for ship-building; to Manchester for machinery. These elements are equally divided between England and France; and the fact is significant as showing that the Sultan has no predilection for one country over the other. He is neither of a French party, nor of an English party; and Lord Redcliffe's great influence over him is merely the influence of a man of commanding ability, great knowledge, and great honour. If he were a Freemason, the Sultan would follow him with the same fidelity.

CASTLES OF THE DARDANELLES.

We append a View of the Castles of the Dardanelles. The European shore is on the left, and the Asiatic on the right. The fort and batteries on the European side are called Chiltbaveh, or Kilidbahr, "the Lock of the Sea." The town and battery on the opposite side are called Chanak Kalessi, or Sultanie-Kalessi. These batteries are effectively armed with ordnance of prodigious calibre, which threaten destruction to any ships that might approach the passage of the Dardanelles, from the Mediterranean. The Emperor Alexander used to call the Dardanelles the "key of my house," and it is unquestionably necessary to the march of Russian empire to have the right of free egress and ingress through the gates of the Dardanelles, which are the gates of the Black Sea. We cannot be surprised at the consternation of Russia at the presence of a French and English fleet in the Turkish waters, when we remember that even in the Sumptuous the armament of Russia in the Black Sea might be easily destroyed, while the forts and naval arsenals of Sevastopol Russia might be blockaded and bombarded by the ships of the combined powers.

Avedis Zildjian

CYMBALSMITH

[illegible] the romance of cymbals is inextricably woven [illegible] story of the Zildjian family and the [illegible] cymbals [illegible] the world over.

True, before the Zildjians did it, [illegible] cymbals had been used in the highly rhythmic music of Turkey's civilization and down through the Middle Ages to the present. Turkish armies marched to the beat of cymbals and the bands of Constantinople [illegible].

But the modern history of cymbals did not begin until 1623, when an alchemist of Constantinople named Avedis [illegible] was a skilled practitioner [illegible] and opened the [illegible] to the manufacture of cymbals. As his fame spread, patrons and guild brothers gave Avedis the name Zildjian, which meant "cymbal-maker."

Beyond the borders of Turkey, cymbals were [illegible] Then, in 1760, when Gluck wrote his symbol-and-trio-filled [illegible] the rich sound of the Turkish [illegible] great popularity, especially with the Prussian [illegible] Many bands [illegible] began to flaunt their [illegible] from the Zildjians of Constantinople because of the brilliant sound. But only a Zildjian cymbal could produce it. Soon the Zildjians were [illegible] subject to every part of the globe.

It was the custom of the Zildjian family for [illegible] of years to pass along the family secrets [illegible] and [illegible] the Ottoman [illegible] continued [illegible] this system, the Zildjian family has [illegible] cymbals [illegible] making since the Armenians [illegible] 1623.

In 1851, the patriarch Avedis Zildjian built a [illegible] foundry and called it Agop [illegible] Manoushian, thence to London, where [illegible] his cymbals and the world took [illegible]

London and Paris in 1851 and again in London in 1862, cymbals bearing the name Avedis Zildjian [illegible] Agop [illegible] Manoushian [illegible]

In 1865, K. [illegible] succeeded Avedis, placed his [illegible] the season of [illegible] In his [illegible] K. Zildjian conveyed the family [illegible] Aram Zildjian [illegible] of drastic political conditions in Europe, Aram was able to produce only a small number of cymbals before 1909. Kevork, in 1909, Aram Zildjian came to the United States expressly to reveal the secrets of the Zildjian process to his nephew, the Poet [illegible] and brother Travis [illegible] who was then a little more than [illegible]

Today, assisted by sons Armand and Robert, [illegible] is making cymbals in Norwell, [illegible] Their factory is considered the last of the real [illegible] in New England.

Just as the Zildjians have jealously guarded the secret of their own process through the ages, they have unceasingly studied and evaluated technical advancements in the fabrication, processing and fabrication of metals as applied to all modern days of industry. In the process they have quietly but thoroughly researched the nature and [illegible] and they test products of our class competitors who have, for centuries, sought the answer to the Zildjian [illegible]

Certain phases of making Avedis Zildjian cymbals call for use of the most advanced technical aids and equipment in the world. The Zildjian family, however, has a tangible pride in hand [illegible] and [illegible] which personal [illegible] is absolutely essential in creating cymbals of [illegible] with consistently [illegible] precision. Hail Mary and [illegible] production alone
